

National Public Lands Day

A National Environmental Education Foundation Program

National Public Lands Day is the nation's largest hands-on volunteer effort to improve and enhance public lands for Americans to enjoy. In 2009, 150,000 volunteers built trails and bridges, removed trash and invasive plants, planted trees and restored water resources. This year the program will provide nearly 800 California native trees for planting. The Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation invite everyone to visit a participating park to help celebrate this fun event on September 25, 2010!

Listed below are six Los Angeles County Parks celebrating this upcoming National Public Lands Day (NPLD) event. Find a park near you and help to environmentally restore and beautify a natural habitat today!
